Finally, after all those years of hard work you're ready to take those final steps towards your doctorate! As the last few months of your PhD can be quite hectic and stressful, we have tried to make it a bit easier for you by creating this timeline. It includes all steps that need to be taken in order to get to your defence, starting from the moment your supervisor approves your manuscript up until the big day itself! It is meant as a reference guide to help you monitor your progress and therefore no rights can be derived from this timeline. We hope this document helps you get a grip on this final period and allows you to focus more on the contents and not stress about all the formalities! Best of luck and see you on the other side!
